You stopped sharing data with Pentagon FCU

You chose to stop sharing data with Pentagon FCU. Keep in mind that it can take up to 15 minutes for us to stop sharing your data.

However, this doesn't remove the data you already shared with them.

Contact Pentagon FCU directly to understand your options for removing data they've already received from you. You can also review Pentagon FCU's Terms of Use & Privacy Policy to understand how they plan to use or share your data.

If you removed access to a deposit account for an app that requested a substitute account number, that substitute is no longer available for transactions. Update any scheduled or automatic payments with another account number. See our FAQ page for more information about substitute account numbers.

You can start sharing data again anytime by signing in to Pentagon FCU and linking your Chase account.

If you have questions or didn't make this change, call us. You can find the number under the Help & Support section of chase.com.
